OKLAHOMA CITY -- The Final Report on the Bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building here may be the best tool currently at our disposal to begin the process of discovering what really happened September 11, 2001.

The self-published report is the product of six years of privately-funded investigation by the Oklahoma Bombing Investigation Committee led by former Oklahoma State Representative Charles Key. The 550-page work exposes in minute detail, based upon the evidence, that the federal government began obstructing the bomb investigation almost immediately after the Ryder truck blew up.

Federal obstruction with regard to the OK City bombing continues almost seven years and a new presidential administration later. "We can finally close the book on Oklahoma City," said President Bush after Tim McVeigh was allegedly put to death as the lone perpetrator of what was then the most lethal terrorist attack on U.S. soil.

"Putting the impossibility that an ANFO (ammonium nitrate/fuel oil) bomb did the amount of damage all by itself and the fact that we all saw unexploded bombs being carried out of the building after the blast (and numerous other flaws in the official story), one thing stands out in my mind. After reading the Final Report," said IO Editor Don Harkins to Charles Key in a recent phone interview, "The FBI has admitted it has the fingerprints of John Doe #2 taken from the Dreamland Motel where he was known to have stayed and that it just didn't think it was important enough to run them."

Key then reminded Harkins of 22 other critical pieces of evidence that the FBI has refused to release -- even though it has been court ordered to do so. "Shortly after the bombing, the FBI seized at least 22 high quality color surveillance tapes from the Murrah building and surrounding buildings," said Key.

FBI's refusal to release the video tapes is an indication that they tell a story that is inconsistent with the one that led to Tim McVeigh's apparent execution last May.

"How can we trust anything the federal government has to say about Sept. 11 when court documents and witness statements prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that the feds have been lying to the world about what really happened at OK City?" Harkins asked.

The Final Report shows that the federal government is capable of lies and obstruction that protect the guilty and imprison the innocent. It also shows that it can make the public believe that one ANFO bomb can blow up a federal building even if it's scientifically impossible.
