Document Description : This document is a 6-page fax, including a 1-page fax cover sheet, a 1-page transmission report, and a 4-page letter dated January 4, 1995 from a CIA attorney to a Department of Justice (DOJ) attorney relating to a records search on a possible witness for the Oklahoma City bombing trial. It is classified SECRET.

The document is withheld in part on the basis of FOIA Exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), (b)(5), and (b)(6).

Exemption (b)(1) and (b)(3) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(1). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods that is properly classified pursuant to section 1.4(c) of Executive Order 12958, as amended, and is thus protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(1). This document is also withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods, which are specifically exempted from disclosure by Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403-1(i)(1) (West Supp. 2008) and Section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3).

Specifically, information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) would disclose information currently and properly classified at the SECRET level regarding contacts between the CIA and the potential witness, as well as the location of a covert CIA facility. Disclosure of information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) reasonably could be expected to result in serious damage to the national security of the United States.

Exemption (b)(3) - The CIA Act - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to the organization and numbers of persons employed by the CIA that is specifically exempted from disclosure by section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3). Information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(3) includes, but is not limited to, the name of a CIA employee, a CIA employee telephone number, and a CIA employee fax number and signatures.

Exemption (b)(5) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of FOIA Exemption (b)(5). This document contains information, legal analysis, and/or opinion prepared by a CIA attorney in contemplation of criminal proceedings. In the letter, the attorney responds to a request for information as to whether a potential witness in the Oklahoma City Bombing trial was at any time associated with the CIA. It was prepared by the CIA attorney with the expectation of the attorney that it would be held in confidence, and it has been held in confidence. This attorney work product is thus protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(5). This document also contains confidential communications between the CIA and DOJ. In the context of the prosecution, the CIA provided confidential information to DOJ, the entity authorized to speak on its behalf, in relation to the subject matter of the communication. It was prepared by the CIA with the joint expectation of the CIA and DOJ that it would be held in confidence, and it has been held in confidence. These privileged attorney-client communications are thus protected from disclosure by Exemption b(5).

Exemption (b)(6) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(6). This document contains a potential witness's personal information, the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Specifically, information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(6) includes the name of the potential witness, date of birth, aliases used by the potential witness, and social security number. The public interest in disclosure of this information does not outweigh the harm to the individual whose privacy would be violated, and thus the information is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(6).

The document is withheld in part by DOJ NSD on the basis of FOIA Exemptions (b)(2), (b)(6), and (b)(7)(C).

Exemption (b)(2) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(2). The information withheld constitutes purely administrative information, including a NSD secure fax number.

Exemptions (b)(6)/(b)(7)(C) - The document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemptions (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C). The document contains information compiled by NSD for law enforcement purposes. The information withheld consists of the name and phone number of a NSD employee and results of a name trace search performed by the CIA at the request of DOJ. The disclosure of this information could reasonably be expected to constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under Exemption (b)(6) and an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy under Exemption (b)(7)(C).

Document Description : This document is a 3-page letter dated November 8, 1995 from a CIA attorney to an FBI Supervisory Special Agent. The document discusses a records search conducted by the CIA on Timothy McVeigh and Terry Lynn Nichols. It is classified CONFIDENTIAL.

The document is withheld by the CIA in part on the basis of FOIA Exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3).

Exemption (b)(1) and (b)(3) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(1). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods that are properly classified pursuant to section 1.4(c) of Executive Order 12958, as amended, and is thus protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(1). This document is also withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods, which are specifically exempted from disclosure by Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403-1(i)(1) (West Supp. 2008) and Section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3).

FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) were invoked to protect information regarding specific CIA records systems that were searched in response to an FBI request. Disclosure of information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) reasonably could be expected to result in damage to the national security of the United States.

Exemption (b)(3) - The CIA Act - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to the organization and numbers of persons employed by the CIA that is specifically exempted from disclosure by section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3). Information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(3) includes but is not limited to: the name of a CIA employee, a CIA employee signature, and a CIA employee telephone number.

The document is withheld by the FBI in part on the basis of FOIA Exemption (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C).

Exemption (b)(6), 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(6), exempts from disclosure of information "the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

Similarly, Exemption (b)(7)(C), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (b)(7)(C) exempts from disclosure: records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to the extent that the production of such law enforcement records or information could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Before Exemption (b)(7)(C) can be invoked, the FBI must satisfy the Exemption (b)(7) threshold. Exemption (b)(7) protects from mandatory disclosure records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to the extent that disclosure could reasonably be expected to cause one of the harms enumerated in the subpart of the exemption. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7). Law enforcement agencies like the FBI must demonstrate that the records at issue are related to the enforcement of federal laws and that the enforcement activity is within the law enforcement duty of that agency.

The law enforcement duties of the FBI include upholding and enforcing the criminal laws of the United States. Here, the records in the underlying investigation involve federal crimes such as conspiracy to use a weapon of mass destruction (18 U.S.C. § 2332a), use of a weapon of mass destruction (18 U.S.C. §§ 2332a and 2(a) & 2(b)), destruction by explosive (18 U.S.C. § 844(f) and 2(a) & 2(b)), and first degree murder (18 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1111 and 2(a) & 2(b), and 28 C.F.R. § 64.2(h)). Thus, the underlying investigation in this case falls within the federal law enforcement duties of the FBI, and therefore all of the investigative information that is responsive to plaintiff's request readily meets the threshold requirement of Exemption (b)(7).

Exemption (b)(6) has been asserted in conjunction with Exemption (b)(7)(C) to protect the names and identifying information of FBI Special Agents who are responsible for conducting, supervising, and/or maintaining the investigative activities reported in the criminal investigation United States v. Timothy James McVeigh and Terry Lynn Nichols. The FBI Special Agents who investigated that case have privacy interests in avoiding publicity, adverse or otherwise, regarding any particular investigation that may seriously impair their effectiveness in conducting future investigations. Moreover, FBI Special Agents conduct official inquiries into violations of various criminal statutes, as well as counter-terrorism and national security investigations. They come into contact with all strata of society and conduct searches and make arrests, both of which result in reasonable, but nonetheless serious disturbances in the lives of individuals. It is possible for a person targeted by such law enforcement action to carry a grudge which may last for years, and to seek revenge on the Special Agents involved in the investigation. The publicity associated with the release of the identity of an FBI Special Agent in connection with a particular investigation could trigger hostility towards the Special Agent by such persons. Finally, privacy considerations protect FBI Special Agents from unnecessary, unofficial questioning as to the conduct of an investigation, whether or not they are currently employed by the FBI.

The FBI examined the names and/or identifying information of FBI Special Agents to determine whether there was any public interest that outweighs the substantial privacy interests in the responsive records. The FBI could not identify any discernible public interest. In particular, the FBI could not determine how the disclosure of the names and identifying information of the FBI Special Agents would shed any light on the operations and activities of the FBI. Thus, the FBI determined that the privacy interests of the Special Agents in protecting their names and identifying information from disclosure outweighed any public interest in disclosure, and that disclosure of the names and identifying information of the FBI Special Agents would constitute a clearly unwarranted and unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Accordingly, the FBI has properly withheld this information pursuant to Exemptions (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C).

Document Description : This document is a 2-page, 3-paragraph, cable dated May 17, 1995 from CIA officers at CIA Headquarters to CIA officers in the field, requesting field to provide traces on subject as soon as possible. It is classified SECRET.

The document is withheld in part by the CIA on the basis of FOIA Exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3).

Exemption (b)(1) and (b)(3) - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(1). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and intelligence methods that is properly classified pursuant to the section 1.4(c) of Executive Order 12958, as amended, and is thus protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(1). This document is also withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods, which are specifically exempted from disclosure by Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403-1(i)(1) (West Supp. 2008) and Section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3). FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) were invoked to protect the location of a covert CIA facility and information sharing. Disclosure of the classified information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1) and (b)(3) reasonably could be expected to result in serious damage to the national security of the United States.

Exemption (b)(3) - The CIA Act - This document is withheld in part on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to the organization and names of persons employed by the CIA that is specifically exempted from disclosure by section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus is protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(3). Information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(3) includes, but is not limited to, CIA administrative information, a CIA employee name and phone number, and classified methods.

The document is withheld by the FBI in part on the basis of FOIA Exemptions (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C).

Exemption (b)(6), 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(6), exempts from disclosure of information "the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

Similarly, Exemption (b)(7)(C), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (b)(7)(C) exempts from disclosure: records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to the extent that the production of such law enforcement records or information . . . could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

Before Exemption (b)(7)(C) can be invoked, the FBI must satisfy the Exemption (b)(7) threshold. Exemption (b)(7) protects from mandatory disclosure records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to the extent that disclosure could reasonably be expected to cause one of the harms enumerated in the subpart of the exemption. See 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7). Law enforcement agencies like the FBI must demonstrate that the records at issue are related to the enforcement of federal laws and that the enforcement activity is within the law enforcement duty of that agency.

The law enforcement duties of the FBI include upholding and enforcing the criminal laws of the United States. Here, the records in the underlying investigation involve federal crimes such as conspiracy to use a weapon of mass destruction (18 U.S.C. § 2332a), use of a weapon of mass destruction (18 U.S.C. §§ 2332a and 2(a) & 2(b)), destruction by explosive (18 U.S.C. § 844(f) and 2(a) & 2(b)), and first degree murder (18 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1111 and 2(a) & 2(b), and 28 C.F.R. § 64.2(h)). Thus, the underlying investigation in this case falls within the federal law enforcement duties of the FBI, and therefore all of the investigative information that is responsive to plaintiff's request readily meets the threshold requirement of Exemption (b)(7).

Exemption (b)(6) has been asserted in conjunction with (b)(7)(C) to protect the name and/or identifying information concerning a third party who is of investigative interest to the FBI. Identifying information withheld includes their name, date of birth and known aliases. To release the identity of a third party listed as a subject of FBI interest could subject them to harassment, embarrassment and could cause undue public attention. Furthermore, disclosure of their identity could threaten their physical safety. Accordingly, the FBI has determined that the individual maintains a substantial privacy interest in not having their identity disclosed. Thus, disclosure of this information would constitute a clearly unwarranted and unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy.

In light of the substantial privacy interests of a third party of investigative interest, the FBI examined the records at issue to determine whether there was any outweighing public interest. The FBI could not identify any discernible public interest. In particular, the FBI could not determine how the disclosure of the name, and/or identifying information of a third party of investigative interest would shed any light on the internal operations and activities of the FBI. Thus, the FBI determined that the privacy interests of a third party of investigative interest outweighed any public interest in disclosure, and that disclosure of their name and identifying information would constitute a clearly unwarranted and unwarranted invasion of their personal privacy. Accordingly, the FBI has properly withheld this information pursuant to Exemptions (b)(6) and (b)(7)(C).

Exemption (b)(1) and (b)(3) - This document is withheld in its entirety on the basis of Exemption (b)(1). This document contains information relating to intelligence activities, intelligence sources, intelligence methods, and foreign relations or foreign activities of the United States, including confidential sources that is properly classified pursuant to section 1.4(c) and 1.4(d) of Executive Order 12958, as amended, and is thus protected from disclosure by Exemption (b)(1). This document is also withheld in its entirety on the basis of Exemption (b)(3). This document contains information relating to intelligence sources and/or methods, which are specifically exempted from disclosure by Section 102A(i)(1) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403-1(i)(1) (West Supp. 2008) and Section 6 of the Central Intelligence Act of 1949, as amended, 50 U.S.C.A. § 403g (West Supp. 2008), and thus

Additionally, information withheld pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(6) includes the name of an FBI agent, the name of a person of interest, and the person of interest's social security number, date of birth, and other descriptive information.
